

Bristol Cream

IN their first appearance in Edinburgh, Revunions, the Bristol University's Revue Society, have made a real hit on the Festival Fringe with their popular revue "Bristol Cream" which opened on August 27.

Playing to very good houses at the Viewforth Centre, the programme cracks along at top speed with an immensely hard working team — Hazel McBride, Mike O'Mahony, Rob Palmer, Richard Robinson and Adrian Spencer-Ashworth.

Their efforts are well rewarded for the result is a clever, witty revue that varies from mild political satire to sheer zany nonsense. Occasional banalities are quickly forgiven in the rapid succession of items. The group, plus admirable musical support from Steve Brown and Colin Sell, represent a considerable wealth of talent that bodes well for the future. B.C.

~~~~~ CAST ~~~~~

'BRISTOL CREAM'

Late-night revue. Presented by Bristol University Revue Society, in company with Bristol Playwrites, at the Viewforth Centre, Edinburgh, on August 27, as part of the Edinburgh Festival Fringe programme. Directed by Mike O'Mahony.